ROSENTHAL'S

Clothier, Furnisher and Hatter.

On Monday afternoon a negro named Charles Coleman criminally assaulted a young white school girl aged 15 named Margaret Lear in the suburbs of Shreveport. In the struggle the negro shot the girl in the head from which she died in a short time. The negro fled but was captured and jailed. That night more than a thousand enraged citizens surrounded the jail demanding the negro, but the sheriff and a large number of armed guards kept them from securing the negro. The state guard are now protecting him. The negro will be given a speedy trial, and should be hung for his diabolical deed.

At Roskilde, Denmark, on the 18th, in the magnificent old gothic church there the body of King Christian IX. amid the thunder of guns, the sonorous tones of the organ and the blare of trumpets was laid to rest with the long line of his predecessors on the Danish throne, whose remains repose in the chapel in Roskilde's red stone fane. Many relatives and foreign monarchs were present.

A Pleasant Afternoon.

The Woman's Home Mission Society of the M. E. Church, South, was invited to hold the devotional meeting for February 19th in the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. Will E. Singleton, on Clarksville street.

Although several members of the Society were absent on account of sickness and the threatening weather, at 3 o'clock quite a number of ladies were assembled, and with the president as leader one of the most pleasant and profitable meetings was enjoyed.

Each member seemed to enter into service with zeal and a desire to obtain all possible good from it. These monthly meetings of our Society always prove the greatest spiritual benefit to all who engage in them.

After the lesson the reading of tracts and the sweet inspiring songs rendered by Mesdames Torrans, Deware and Minor, an interesting talk on 'Connectional Work' by our president showed the importance and sacredness of that feature of the Home Mission Society and we all feel a greater desire than ever before to give all possible support to this grand work.

After the meeting adjourned a most delightful social hour passed during which there were several warm discussions.

Evidently our admirable hostess had anticipated them, for we seldom enjoy more delicious cream and cake than she, assisted by little Miss Marguerite, sat before us.

Time passed so pleasantly and rapidly that 6 o'clock came all too soon, and we reluctantly disbanded, carrying away with us memories of a pleasant afternoon as well as our motto—"And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works."

JORDAN ON MURDER.

Is an Honorable Crime if Committed in the Right Way.

New York, Feb. 21.—In the Patrick case District Attorney Jerome asked J. J. Jordan of Seabrook, Tex.: "Do you think murder is a personal matter?"

"Murder is an honorable crime if committed in the right way," was Jordan's reply.

Thomas F. Jett of Houston was called. Jett said that Jones told him that neither he nor Patrick was responsible for the death of Rice. Jones told him that Rice was used to taking medicine of his own accord, and that Patrick had never told him to administer chloroform. The witness then added that Jones said that he had put the blame on Patrick to save himself, and that if Patrick was electrocuted an innocent man would suffer. Jett testified that he once served a two-year sentence for forgery.

He then left the stand, and was replaced by Henry J. Moran of Houston. Moran admitted that he had been arrested on a charge of vagrancy, and when asked if, when the charge was dismissed, it was not upon his promise to leave town, he said: "Well, I was going away anyway." He said he knew Jones well, and that the former valet had told him that neither he nor Patrick was responsible for the death of Rice. Jones told him also that he was so hounded by the police in New York that he put the blame on Patrick to save himself.

Robert Lee of Houston was recalled by Mr. Jerome. He said he had known Valet Jones since March 25, and that the latter had told him that Patrick was not guilty, and he hoped he would not suffer. Lee admitted having been arrested in Houston for intoxication.

Mrs. C. F. Moseley of Lodi, was in the city Tuesday.
